100% Program Support

 Detailed Grant Description

This grant seeks to support the wages of POWER Youth's High School Interns during the summer of 2022. The High School Internship program is designed to empower Nashville's 16-18 year olds while providing real chances for young people to learn work-related skills that will stimulate the next generation of growth in our economy--benefiting our youth, our businesses, and our city. Young people participate in independent internships in private, public, non-profit, and university settings. In addition, the program integrates supportive adult relationships, pre-program work-readiness training, reflection and on-going intentional skill-building in soft skills, social and emotional learning, financial literacy, and college-going support. All POWER Youth High School Interns are paid $14 per hour for 28 hours per week of work for 7 weeks in the Summer.

The Annie E. Casey Foundation reports that internships in high school that incorporate positive relationships with adults affect job quality a decade later and that having a job as a teenager predicts high job quality in adulthood and higher wages than unemployed peers as early as age 23. https://www.aecf.org/blog/early-work-experience-and-supportive-adults-a-boon-to-low-income-youth/?utm_source=eblast&utm_medium=email&utm_campaign=economic-opportunity

High School Internship positions accomplish two primary goals. First, they build the kinds of soft-skills employers ask for in employees, and they expose young people to career opportunities in high demand in our region that the young people often are not aware exist. Internship sites are rarely with businesses or organizations that would have open positions for high school-aged employees or for uncertified workers. Instead, the Interns spend six weeks exposed to jobs for which they could train in the future. Both the skill-building and the exposure better prepare young people to be successful employees in the Nashville labor market.

Additional Information

POWER Youth High School Internship Program is part Nashville's youth employment initiative. A private/public partnership begun under the administration of Mayor Megan Barry and actively supported by both Mayors David Briley and John Cooper. The Initiative seeks to help Nashville's young people be prepared and successful employees and to support Nashville's employers in hiring young people.

The High School Internship, with its intentionally integrated skill- building and supportive adult relationships is a model developed in Nashville on a smaller scale in 2005 that now serves over 200 young people per year.

For additional information regarding POWER Youth and its other youth employment strategies, partnerships, and programs, please see the web page at <http://poweryouth.nashville.gov>

 Geographic Use of Funds

In a single city or county

In a single city or county

Young people participating in the High School Internship Program participate in pre-program training at 937 Herman St., Nashville, TN 37208. They then work for six weeks, four days a week at a variety of area employers. These employers are public, private, non-profit, and university workplaces across the city. The young people also participate in virtual session as a group each Friday of the summer. During this time, the participants reflect on what they have learned during the week, and build additional skills related to work readiness, financial literacy, and college going.

Geographic Documentation Partnerships/Collaborations

Yes

Will your organization serve as the lead or center-post agency for the collaboration?

Yes

Please describe the specific collaboration(s) your organization is currently engaged in as part of the purpose of this grant proposal.

The High School Internship program us a wide spread partnership between willing area employers and Power Youth. With in this partnership, the employers provide experience, supervision, and opportunities to genuinely contribute to young people who might otherwise not have had the exposure. Without the employer partners, young people would not be experiencing the level of career exploration and connection with real people that they receive through the Internship Program. Within the context of this partnership, POWER Youth provides coordination, support, and the integrated skill-building that makes the program a rich learning experience and allows for the engagement of such a variety of worksites.

Better Money Habits@

Would your organization be interested in having Bank of America employee volunteers (Better Money Habits Volunteer Champions) help deliver financial habits education to your staff and/or the individuals and families you serve?

 Personal Success Stories

Yes

Please summarize their story here, including client background, demonstrated need, and role of your organization/program in eventual success.

Natalia was a part of the POWER Youth Summer Employment Program, she was a rising senior at MLK High School and was interested in working in an office environment. She was connected with Adult Education Department at Metro Action Commission and her primary focus was to provide administrative support to the Adult Education Team. Natalia provided administrative assistance for two instructors, a case manager, and a coordinator. Administrative support consisted primarily of graduation preparation and new program year preparation. Skills Natalia used during graduation preparation included filing, typing, sorting, organizing, ordering, inventory control, customer service, proofing, and photography. She communicated frequently with Adult Education students to provide updates about schedules, graduation activities, employment opportunities, and other important information. In addition, she assisted with graduation decorations and assembling of graduation gift packages. Natalia also participated in bi monthly student meetings via zoom to ensure non-graduate students are informed of up-to-date requirements to earn their high school diploma.

To prepare for the upcoming program year, Natalia assisted by reproducing, sorting, assembling, and binding training materials. Other administrative duties included supporting of 6 family development specialist staff members by ensuring utility records are filed and easily accessible. Microsoft Word, Excel, and PowerPoint software applications were computer skills used during the Intern process. To speak with Natalia directly, please contact Tanya Evrenson at tanya.evrenson@nashville.gov.
