Analysis

This ordinance adds the honorary designation of "Charles Dungey Way" for a portion of 40th Avenue North between Indiana Avenue and Clifton Avenue. Charles Dungey, Jr., who passed away on September 22, 2003, was an internationally recognized jazz bassist and vocalist who dedicated his career to jazz performance and education. He toured with Pearl Bailey and Sammy Davis Jr. and worked alongside jazz greats Milt Jackson, Eartha Kitt, Betty Carter, and Hank Crawford. He was the first black bassist with the Nashville Symphony in the 1970s and served as a faculty member at Tennessee State University. His father owned Deborah's Casino Royale Supper Club, which once stood near this portion of 40th Avenue North.

Section 13.08.025 of the Metro Code provides a procedure for the designation of honorary street signs whereby the Council, by ordinance, can authorize and direct the Department of Public Works to install two honorary street signs per street - at each end of a street - beneath the official street name sign for any street identified on the official Street and Alley Centerline Layer map. No honorary street sign can be installed honoring a living person; and each member of council can sponsor only one such ordinance each calendar year. This ordinance does not officially re-name the designated street. Therefore, there would be no change of official address for properties along this portion of 40th Avenue North.
