Analysis

This ordinance, as substituted, amends Chapters 16.04 and 16.08 of the Metropolitan Code to require the director of the Department of Codes to maintain an online database for residential and multi-family building permits, to remove the requirement for separate restrooms for each sex in gas stations, and to amend the requirement for washer/dryer hookups in structures built under the residential building code.

Currently, Section 16.04.070 of the Metropolitan Code requires the director of the Department of Codes to maintain an online database for residential and multi-family building permits. The database must include quarterly information on the number and type of demolition permits issued for residential property, the number and type of residential building permits issued, and the number and type of residential occupancy permits issued. The ordinance under consideration adds that a designee of the director may maintain the database.

The ordinance also amends Section 16.08.012 of the Metropolitan Code to remove the amendment to the adopted 2018 International Building Code ("IBC") that requires separate restroom facilities for each sex in gas stations. Removing this requirement would revert the restroom requirement back to the standard requirement for restroom facilities found in Table 2902.1 of the 2018 IBC, which is not sex specific and regulates the required number of water closets and lavatories on the basis of occupant load.

Finally, the ordinance amends Section 16.08.014 of the Metropolitan Code to amend the amendment to the adopted 2018 International Residential Code ("IRC") that requires every dwelling unit built under the adopted IRC to include a washing machine connection, a dryer electrical connection, and a vent for the dryer. The amended language would require every dwelling unit to be provided with a washing machine connection and a dryer connection. The adopted 2018 IRC regulates the construction of single-family structures, two-family structures, and townhouses. Stacked flats, low-rise multi-family buildings, mid-rise multi-family buildings, and high-rise multi-family buildings are regulated by the adopted 2018 IBC.
